Notes:
ASSESSING YOUR CHILD’S CHARACTER STRENGTHS

Answering the statements below will help you determine your child’s Character Strengths that help her thrive. There are no right or wrong answers. This is only for you to see where your child is right now and help you determine which traits are his strengths and which to encourage. To evaluate your child’s strengths, write the number you think best represents your child’s current level on the line following each statement.

5 = Always, 4 = Frequently, 3 = Sometimes, 2 = Rarely, 1 = Never

MY CHILD . . . (Or yourself)

1. Can easily and accurately describe her special strengths and positive qualities

2. Is proud and confident in her abilities; enjoys being herself

3. Focuses mostly on her strengths instead of weaknesses and past failures

4. Speaks mostly positively about herself, rarely negatively

5. Has a few developed hobbies and interests that encourage natural strengths

6. Shows sensitivity toward the needs and feelings of others

7. Recognizes when someone is distressed and responds appropriately.

8. Shows a willingness to understand someone else’s point of view
9. Displays concern and wants to help when someone is treated unfairly or unkindly _______
10. Tears up or is upset when someone else is suffering _______
11. Is honest, admits mistakes, and accepts blame for incorrect actions _______
12. Can identify his wrong behavior and turn a wrong action into a right one _______
13. Feels guilt about his wrong or improper actions _______
14. Rarely needs admonishments/reminders as to how to act right _______
15. Can be trusted to do the right thing and keep his word even when no one is looking _______
16. Able to manage her own impulses and urges without adult help _______
17. Easily calms down and bounces back when excited, frustrated, or angry _______
18. Can identify his unhealthy emotions and stress signs prior to their escalating _______
19. Has the ability to wait for something; can cope with behavioral impulses _______
20. Can remain focused on age-appropriate tasks without adult prompts _______
21. Asks copious why-type questions that don’t always have yes/no answers _______
22. Enjoys finding new ways to use conventional things or solving problems _______
23. Loves learning new things that drive her interest _______
24. Intrigued or easy to motivate about trying something new, different, or surprising _______
25. Willing to be wrong and try a different, unconventional way _______
26. Willingly tries new tasks with little concern about failing or making a mistake
   _______
27. Recognizes that the way to improve is by working harder
   _______
28. Does not become upset when something is difficult; rarely quits but keeps trying
   _______
29. Willing to try again if not successful with a task
   _______
30. Doesn’t equate a mistake as a personal failure but a learning opportunity
   _______
31. Expresses gratitude, is appreciative, and takes stock of the good things around her
   _______
32. Uses positive self-talk to express hope and reinforce good outcomes and attitudes
   _______
33. Doesn’t blame but forgives; knows something she can do to make things better
   _______
34. Can find the silver lining in a hardship or challenge
   _______
35. Equates setbacks and failures as temporary, not permanent
   _______

Then add up the scores for each Character Strength: questions 1–5 = Self-Confidence; 6–10 = Empathy; 11–15 = Integrity; 16–20 = Self-Control; 21–25 = Curiosity; 26–30 = Perseverance; 31–35 = Optimism. Determine your child’s highest and lowest character traits. The top traits are your child’s natural strengths that build confidence and help him thrive, so continue nurturing them to ensure that your child recognizes them in himself. Go to the book sections that address the one or two traits receiving the lowest scores so you can enhance your child’s potential to thrive.
